HALF A THOUSAND ACRES

BALMAIN

A history of the land grant

by

Peter L. Reynolds and Paul V. Flottmann

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL. This December issue of the Balmain Association News Sheet is being circulated more widely this month as the Management Committee feels that many new residents in Balmain, Birchgrove and Rozelle may be uninformed about the Association.

The Balmain Association is a non-political local civic group that was formed in 1965 to save the Watch House from demolition. A group of concerned residents came forward to fight for the conservation of Balmain's heritage and as a result the Watch House was acquired by the National Trust, and subsequently leased to the Association. In its early days the Association led the fight against the building of container wharves; and more recently our most serious struggle was the campaign against the second Harbour crossing.

The Association also researches, records and published aspects of Balmain's past to promote interest in and understanding of this fine historic area.

For the forthcoming year new fund-raising projects are being considered. Who would be willing to help on Sub-Committees that will be looking at the possibilities of producing new postcards of the Balmain district and an Association T-shirt design?

LARRIKIN DAYS:

100 YEARS OF GROWING UP IN AN AUSTRALIAN SUBURB.

Nicholson Street Public School Parents and Citizens Association in association with John Ferguson, Sydney.

112pp, $14.95

 AVAILABLE AT THE WATCH HOUSE **

While the centennial celebrations of the Nicholson Street Public School have been observed by most of us living or working in the Balmain peninsula, one enduring aspect of the birthday party may have escaped notice: LARRIKIN DAYS.

Published recently and launched by the best-known 'Balmain Boy' of all, Premier Neville Wran, LARRIKIN DAYS is a social history of Balmain. Anecdotes and interviews with long-time residents are strongly woven into the fabric of the book.

The author, himself a journalist and Balmain resident, reminds us that during the early years of the 19th century the peninsula was used for picnics and kangaroo hunts. From these beginnings, we read about Billy Hughes' Saturday night speeches near the Unity Hall pub at Loyalty Square, in the days when he was a Balmain shopkeeper dreaming of a career in politics. The schism which divided the congregation of Saint Mary's church when a church warden sued a former secretary of the Sunday school is recorded, as well as tales of how the 'battlers' braved the Depression. Joe Wran, the Premier's older brother, remembers the fruit and vegetable business he nursed through the Depression, making daily rounds through Balmain and Rozelle with horse and cart. And the Premier himself tells how, as a boy, he caught blue swimmer crabs at the bottom of The Avenue. The pages are interspersed with over a hundred photographs, giving us another look at the people and buildings of our suburb over the past century.

LARRIKIN DAYS is an informative history, yet entertaining and light-hearted at the same time. A must for any Balmainiac, serious or otherwise.

HERITAGE ROSES

The Balmain "Event of the Year" has been the Show of Heritage Roses, which filled the Watch House with perfume and attracted visitors from all over Sydney and beyond. The Balmain Garden Club and the Balmain Association provided helpers, who sold admissions, literature, Devonshire teas and plants and also answered questions. $880 was raised clear of expenses, and the Garden Club divided this most generously between the Heritage Roses Society and the Balmain Association.

Our thanks to the many members who responded to our appeal for help.

LOST AT THE OLD-FASHIONED ROSES SHOW 6 NOVEMBER AT THE BALMAIN WATCH HOUSE.

A blue and bronze-coloured enamel butterfly brooch of great sentimental value to its owner may have been lost at the Watch House on the day of the Old-fashioned Roses Exhibition. If anyone has found it, would they please hand it in at the Watch House any Sunday between 2-4 pm.
